Using Hybrid Methods: Biographic Narrative Interpretive Method (BNIM) With Strauss and Corbin’s (1990) Version of Grounded Theory to Analyse the Experience of Gang Members
Using Hybrid Methods: Biographic Narrative Interpretive Method (BNIM) With Strauss and Corbin’s (1990) Version of Grounded Theory to Analyse the Experience of Gang Members

About This Dataset

Data source citation

Hesketh, 2018

Full title of originating dataset

A critical exploration of why some individuals with similar backgrounds do or do not become involved in deviant street groups and the potential implications for their future life choices.

Data author(s) and affiliations

Dr. Robert F. Hesketh

First publication date

2018
Funding sources/suppliers
Merseyside Police/University of Chester

Sample/sampling procedures
Random

Data collection dates
2014–2015

Time frame of analysis
Over one year

Unit of analysis
Young people involved in street gangs and young people not involved in street gangs

Location covered by data
Liverpool, Merseyside

Abbreviations, conventions or notation devices
BNIM = Biographic Narrative Interpretive Method
TQUINs = Topical Questions Inducing Narratives
SHEIOT = Situations, Happenings, Events, Incidents, Occurrences, Times
SQUIN = Single Question-Inducing Narrative
PINs = Particular Incident Narratives